PRESIDENT'S NOTES

At the monthly meeting of the PBCC Board held October 12 at Central Campus, PBCC President Edward M. Eissey discussed the College's legislative needs.

He alerted trustees to the fact that the November election ballot still contains one item which, if passed, will have negative impact on the funding of community colleges. The item, Proposed State Revenue Limitations, is a tax cap limiting revenues to no more than the growth of Florida personal income. The impact on community colleges is that no funds will be available for projected student enrollment growth at a time when high school graduates are projected to increase by 73 percent.

In addition, no funds will be available to make up for past funding inequities. PBCC had hoped to be funded at the 100 percent level for each FTE earned, instead of remaining at the bottom of the community colleges' list at 94 percent per FTE (number 24 out of 28 community colleges).

Eissey said that there has been a 20-year downward slide in the percentage of funding per FTE that community colleges receive in comparison to the funding that is received by state universities and the K-12 public schools. The disparity is highlighted by the fact that the state universities were funded last year at a rate of $6,343 per FTE compared to $3,142 provided to community colleges.

The local legislative delegation will be asked to support equitable funding for community colleges at the same rate per FTE that universities are funded for freshman and sophomore students.

In other business, trustees were presented a letter from State Board of Community Colleges Executive Director Clark Maxwell Jr., commending PBCC for maintaining proper accounting records and internal control procedures as reflected in this year's audit report.

The next regular board meeting will be held at 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, November 9, 1994 at the South Campus, Student Services Building, Room 139.

REMEMBER ELECTION DAY

Please remember to vote on Tuesday, November 8. Of importance to community colleges is the defeat of Constitutional Amendment 2. It would limit state revenue collections to the prior year's amount plus an adjustment based on the growth rate of personal income in the state. The passage of this amendment would have a very negative impact on future funding of community colleges.

25 PERCENT BUDGET REDUCTION ANNOUNCED

Palm Beach Community College has been ordered by the State Division of Community Colleges to reduce the PBCC operating budget by 25 percent. PBCC must submit a prioritized plan for meeting this reduction challenge by eliminating programs and increasing efficiency.

Possible ways to reach the reduction include the (A) Closure of all special purpose centers and other instructional sites, (B) Closure of selected campuses (including those under 1000 FTE), and (C) Elimination of organized athletics (intercollegiate) and physical education programs. Other possibilities include programmatic reductions which for areas not part of the primary mission of public community colleges (preparing students for associate in arts and associate in science degrees).

In planning for these reductions, Palm Beach Community College President Edward M. Eissey said he is proposing the following cuts to take effect this summer: "I am eliminating one vice presidential position from this particular institution. I am going to take this vice presidential position's responsibilities and divide them among the other three vice presidents of the College, which will save some money. I am not going to replace the provost on the Eissey Campus with another provost. I am going to combine the provost's position on the Eissey Campus with the dean of academic affairs position so one person will fill both administrative positions."

He continued by saying, "On the South Campus, I'm going to do the same thing. I am going to combine the provost's position of the South Campus with the dean of academic affairs position, and one person will do two persons' jobs."

Making another point, Eissey stated, "The third thing that we are going to do is to bring the provost, who was on the South Campus, to full-time on the Central Campus. There will be no change in the Glades Campus administration, so we are cutting approximately $277,000 by the combining of those positions."

Eissey concluded by saying, "We are going to save that but we are going to lose a considerable amount by the combination of these entities." He also said that another $90,000 will be gained by cutting support staff for an approximate reduction of $366,000 in administrative areas. At this time, faculty positions are not being cut, and the only cuts that have been made have been in administrators."

According to Eissey, this reduction is just the latest chapter in the State's continuing lack of commitment to community colleges. The point is underscored by the funding levels of the community college system. Although State general revenues have increased (allowing for inflation) by 10.7 percent, allocations to community colleges decreased by 15.4 percent during the time period from 1987 until 1992. This was at a time when community college enrollment statewide increased by 35 percent.

State appropriations are made on a full-time equivalent student basis (equal to 39 semester hours). During 1992-1993 compared to 1987-88, community colleges received 22.96 percent less per FTE (which translates into 37.3 percent less per FTE when adjusted for inflation).

There is also a continuing problem with lack of equitable funding in comparison to what the public school system and state university system receives. The public schools receive 25 percent more per FTE, while the state university system receives 50 percent more per FTE than the community colleges.

PRESIDENT'S NOTES

In January 1995, Palm Beach Community College was requested by the State Division of Community Colleges to prepare a plan for a potential budget reduction of 25 percent. As a result of this request, the College had to submit a proposed prioritized plan for meeting this possible reduction challenge by eliminating programs and increasing efficiency.

Already, PBCC has been hit with a reduction in funding of $433,336, due largely to shortfalls in the Lottery. Clark Maxwell Jr. executive director of the Florida Community College System, has said that community colleges can expect a continued funding challenge. There may be no additional dollars for community colleges, and a reduction in funding is still possible. However, when consideration is given to the fact that the cost of doing business continues to rise, this alone creates a deficit in funding, and PBCC is right back where it started--trying to play catch up.

In an attempt to reduce PBCC costs over the past few years, classes taught by full-time faculty have been reduced to 49 percent, while classes taught by part-time faculty have increased to 51 percent. It would cost an additional $4 million annually to have 80 percent of the classes taught by full-time faculty.

Additionally, faculty salaries in the Florida Community College System have fallen to 88.4 percent of the national average. Also, the cost of maintaining and operating the College's physical plant facilities has increased about 33 percent, from $3.6 million in 1987 to $4.7 million in 1994.

The College can no longer continue to operate in 1995 with the same level of funding that it received several years ago. Simply stated, the demand for PBCC's services has increased. From 1988 to 1993, College enrollment has grown 35 percent, with 51,200 students currently enrolled at PBCC's four campuses. State support in real dollars, adjusted for the consumer price index, fell 15.4 percent during this same time period.

In addition to A.A. programs which prepare students for transfer to four-year colleges and universities, PBCC provides 38 training programs that are directly essential to the economic and social well-being of Palm Beach County residents. These include Accounting Technology, Automotive Services Management Technology, Building Construction Technology, Business Administration and Management, Child Development and Education, Computer Information Systems Analysis, Computer Integrated Manufacturing Technology, Criminal Justice Technology-Corrections and Law Enforcement Tracks and Culinary Management.

Other programs include Dental Hygiene, Dietetic Technician, Drafting and Design Technology, Electronic Engineering Technology, Emergency Medical Service Management, Fashion, Financial Services, Fire Science Technology, Graphic Arts Technology, Graphic Design, Hospitality Management, Human Services Technology, Industrial Management Technology, Interior Design Assistant, Legal Assistant, Marketing Management, Nursing, Occupational Therapy Assistant, Office Systems Technology, Ornamental Horticulture, Pest Control

Technology, Postal Service Management, Professional Pilot, Radiography, Recreation Specialist, Respiratory Care Technology, Sonography, Theatre and Entertainment Technology and Water/Waste Water Management.

The College also offers nine certificate programs: Child Development Associate, Criminal Justice Academies, Custom Garment Making/Dressmaking, Dental Assisting, Medical Secretary Certificate, Paramedic, Plumber's Apprentice, Respiratory Care and Water Treatment and Waste Water Treatment.

Unfortunately, there has been a continued lack of needed funding for community colleges. PBCC has a limited source of revenue, of which the state provides 65 percent and student fees and other sources constitute the remaining 35 percent. PBCC currently charges the maximum student fees allowed by the legislature.

Furthermore, universities are funded at a level that is 100 percent more than community colleges receive for full-time students. For each FTE (full-time equivalent student), universities received $6,343 compared to $3,142 for community colleges.

At this time, the legislative outlook is uncertain. As a result, PBCC is looking at different ways to supplement its funding. One of the options being considered is possible local funding. At the state level, Clark Maxwell is examining the possibility of passing a bill that will allow local property taxes to go to community colleges. PBCC feels that this local funding is well-deserved since the College contributes $85 million annually to Palm Beach County's economy through College, employee and student expenditures.

Presently, the outcome of the College's request for local funding as well as the outcome of the current legislative session remains unclear. However, the College is still optimistic that some level of support will be received from the Palm Beach County Commission.

ADMINISTRATIVE NOTES

I would like to thank every member of the College family who contacted the Palm Beach County Commissioners. Your letters, calls and visits on behalf of PBCC's request for local funding were greatly appreciated. In particular, I wish to pay special thanks to the faculty union officers and the students who worked to support our efforts.

THE PRESIDENT SAYS HAPPY BIRTHDAY MS. MORSE

On April 17, one of PBCC's most respected and beloved emeritus faculty members, Marian Frances Morse, will celebrate her 100th birthday. In 1934, just one year after the College was founded, Marian joined the PBCC faculty where she taught psychology and social studies. She would remain an integral and invaluable member of the College family until her retirement in 1955.

This remarkable educator, who was born in suburban Boston, Massachusetts, graduated from Smith College in 1918. After working for a few years in the New England area, she eventually followed her mother to Florida. Together, the two of them survived the big hurricane of 1928 and the Great Depression of the early '30s. It was at this time that she began her teaching career, first at Mrs. Ade Stretcher's School in Palm Beach, and then tutoring at the grand hotels on the island. Motivated by an intense love of learning, she would eventually go on to earn a master's degree from Florida State University.

Some of you may not know that Marian was also my teacher. In addition, she taught my wife, Faye, who was in the same class with me. Many years have since passed, but I still remember one particular occasion when Ms. Morse transposed our two grades. Wanting to make points with my future wife, I reminded Ms. Morse of this incident, to which she wryly replied, "Well, at least I kept it in the family!"

Marian Morse was the quintessential teacher. She was fiercely dedicated to her students. She offered counsel, but most importantly, she listened.

Several years after her retirement from the College, Marian closed her home on Sunset Road in West Palm Beach and returned to Cape Cod to live. Presently, she resides in the Orleans Convalescent and Retirement Center in Orleans, Massachusetts.

Celebrating one's centennial is a rare milestone. I like to think that God especially loves dedicated teachers and therefore hand picked Marian Morse for this blessing. A very happy 100th birthday, Ms. Morse, from your former student, Ed Eissey, and every member of the Palm Beach Community College family.

The All-Florida Academic Team was created by the State Board of Community Colleges and consists of 44 students representing 15 Florida community colleges. Each member was nominated by their college for the USA TODAY, Phi Theta Kappa-sponsored All USA Academic Team. The team was identified by the nominee's standings in the national competition.

Students chosen distinguished themselves by exceeding the national criteria of a 3.24 cumulative grade point average for all course-work taken, by demonstrating outstanding leadership and by contributing to society through exemplary college and community-service activities.

The SBCC passed a resolution establishing the team and issued certificates to each student honoring their accomplishments. Florida Commissioner of Education Frank Brogan will present a resolution honoring the All-Florida Academic Team at the April 25 Cabinet meeting in Tallahassee.

ERLING AND TATE HONORED

It is often said that good things come in twos. With that adage firmly in mind, Palm Beach Community College held a double Naming Ceremony on April 26 to honor two of its most respected and distinguished administrators--Vice President of Planning and Information Systems Elisabeth W. Erling and Vice President of Administration and Business Affairs G. Tony Tate.

In mid-afternoon ceremonies attended by approximately 300 colleagues, family members and friends, the Central Campus gymnasium was named for Lis Erling and the District Offices were named for Tony Tate.

Considered by many as the Grande Dame of PBCC, Erling joined the College in 1956 as a teacher of health, physical education, anatomy and physiology. In 1964, she was uniquely honored by being appointed Florida's first female athletic director. PBCC officially recognized Erling's outstanding contributions in 1981 by naming her the College's first female vice president. The Elisabeth W. Erling Gymnasium is a fitting tribute to this remarkable educator, who is scheduled to retire on July 31.

Additionally, Tate was recognized for his 37 years of exemplary service and leadership at PBCC. During his accomplished academic career, Tate has held a variety of administrative positions. He was appointed vice president of business affairs in 1978, and in 1987, he assumed his present title and responsibilities.

The welcoming address at both ceremonies was given by Palm Beach Community College Trustees Chair Homer J. Hand. Other speakers included PBCC President

PRESIDENT'S NOTES

The American Council on Education's annual statistical report on the General Educational Development (GED) program finds that a majority of its graduates indicated a desire to continue their education beyond high school.

According to an article which appeared in the July 11, 1995 issue of Community College Times, the trend is not unexpected when considering today's ever-changing technology which has created a global demand for the skillfully trained worker.

The report also found that one in 20 first-year college students is a GED graduate. Director of the GED Testing Service Jean Lowe said that graduates of the program often continue to demonstrate the same levels of determination and perseverance that characterized their efforts to successfully complete their GED studies.

AS DEGREE CREDIT REQUIREMENTS REDUCED

Students who attend Florida's community colleges received some good news recently. As a result of a year-long effort by community college officials, new course requirements will reduce the time--and subsequently the money--needed to complete a two-year degree.

For example, PBCC's nursing students will now have to earn just 72 credits for an associate in science degree--eight less than were previously mandated. Additionally, 15 credits have been cut from the College's emergency medical services (EMS) program, eliminating the business management component.

Prior to the changes, there was a variety of course requirements for associate in science degrees at the state's 28 community colleges. However, in fall term 1996, state requirements for each AS degree program will be standardized.

The reduction in AS degree requirements comes on the heels of earlier state mandates. Recently, Florida's legislators, intent on cutting the cost to the taxpayer of the educational process at two-year institutions, set 60 credits as the statewide standard requirement for an associate in arts degree, which is the university transfer degree. Community college administrators hope that the changes do not impact the quality of higher education.

OLDER STUDENTS IMPACT COMMUNITY COLLEGES

A report in the July 25 edition of Community College Times finds that enrollment of students 25 years or older has grown markedly, with this segment comprising almost half of the student population in the nation's higher education institutions.

At community colleges, this percentage is even higher, with approximately 56 percent of students 25 and older enrolled in classes, according to the National Center for Education Statistics' (NCES) report, Profile of Older Undergraduates.

This older-student group appears to be quite different from the traditional 18 to 25 year old college student. In an examination of demographic and socioeconomic characteristics, for example, older students are generally white and female and are more likely to be single parents. Additionally, they frequently fall in the low-to-moderate income category.

In a study of enrollment patterns, older students are generally enrolled in associate's degree and certificate programs. Understandably, they favor business courses, particularly those which are occupation-related. Also, compared to younger students, those 25 to 39 tend to receive some type of financial assistance. Furthermore, since these students are usually working while attending college, they often receive some degree of tuition reimbursement from employers.

As the general population continues to age, the percentage of those 40 and older is also expected to increase. This significant change in the national age composition is expected to have a direct impact on community colleges that will, in all, likelihood, continue to serve more and more older, non-traditional students.

PTK has sponsored a summer Honors Institute since 1968. The Institute traditionally introduces a timely and interdisciplinary honors topic for in-depth honors study and analysis that the organization's 1,100 chapters examine throughout the year.

PRESIDENT'S NOTES

The 1995-96 academic year at Palm Beach Community College gets underway August 23. In recent years, the College has moved progressively forward in its scheduling of classes, and in addition to the traditional fall, winter and summer terms, PBCC now offers eight week express and 12 week terms. In an effort to keep PBCC staff members apprised of these implementations, a closer look at the College's term schedule follows.

Fall term, term I, is a 16 week session; this year, term I ends December 18. Additionally, a 12 week term begins September 25, followed by an eight-week term which gets underway October 16. Both terms end December 18 as well.

Also, during each major term (fall or winter), there is an eight-week term beginning at the same time as the 16 week term to accommodate nursing courses, which are offered in eight-week modules.

Term II, or winter term, also contains a similar collection of shorter terms.

Terms III and IV are also known as summer A and summer B. Each session lasts six weeks. Presently, some campuses offer courses which span both summer A and summer B.

PBCC's efforts to introduce new term schedules have been made with the students' best interests in mind. College officials are hopeful that PBCC students now have greater opportunities and the necessary flexibility to more easily chart their academic future.

PBCC OFFERS NEW BRIDGE PROGRAM

Palm Beach Community College has linked up with student needs and developed a new concept -- the Bridge Program -- that prepares students for the 21st century work place.

Introduced by Dean of Vocational Education Jan Bussell, the pilot program was designed to help PBCC's entering freshmen who are not prepared for the rigorous academic courses in the associate in science degree program of study. Bussell, together with Central Campus Division IV Chair Eileen Holden and Learning Specialist Magdala Ray, joined forces to develop the initial phase of the program, and they helped to create a five-station computer network lab.

The program is aimed at full-time students who need to build a strong foundation in the areas of math, communication and reading. To qualify for selection, incoming students must have tested into two or more preparatory courses.

In addition to providing remediation, the Bridge Program offers career exploration and intensive counseling, and it uses the method of applied integrating teaching, i.e., relating curriculum to the work place. Throughout the program, participants are taught academic skills which prepare them for easier transition into today's high tech, competitive job market.

Moreover, teachers link the courses together, enabling students to more readily move from one level of instruction to the next. This component also helps students realize the significant interrelationship between the various courses that are offered and the work place.

The Bridge Program is designed for degree seeking students at the associate in science level. At this time, enrollment is limited to 25. For more information, call Bridge Program Adviser Carol Roberts at Central Campus, 439-8054.

LEAP NOMINATIONS INVITED

For the third year, the local consortium--Palm Beach Community College, Broward Community College and Florida Atlantic University--has applied for and been funded for the Leadership Enhancement and Advancement Program (LEAP) grant for women and minorities in midmanagement.

In 1994, PBCC's scholar participants were Eileen Holden, Phillip Jackson and Vickie Lounders Shaver. In 1995, there are six: Sheila Bertino, Judy Gummere, Robin Johnson, Maria Wise Miller, Liz Schmitt and Selma Verse.

At this time, nominations are invited for the 1996 class (September 1995-August 1996) of this professional development activity, and forms may be secured from the office of the vice president of academic affairs. Mentors are needed for each of the participants in the program. Past participants serve as peer mentors, but mentors in highest level administrative positions are needed. Mentors from any one of the three participating consortium institutions are appropriate.

Completed application forms must be submitted by September 5. Interviews and selection of participants will be completed by September 18.

FALL TERM TELECOURSES SET

With the start of fall term, Palm Beach Community College will once again offer courses for credit in partnership with the local PBS affiliate WXEL TV 42. Fall term telecourses begin September 5 and continue through December 7; course selections include Macro Economics, Freshman Communications, Writing About Literature and General Psychology.

Credit students are expected to meet directly with faculty members for orientation and periodically throughout the term.

PRESIDENT'S NOTES

Palm Beach Community College Trustees held their regular meeting of the board September 13 at Central Campus. Board members heard a presentation by Program Specialist Pat Jablonski which focused on the impact of Crossroads and Connections. This grant-funded program is designed to assist displaced homemakers and single parents in their efforts to become financially and emotionally self-supporting. Many individuals who complete this program go on to finish their academic degrees at PBCC.

Under new business, the board discussed alternatives for expansion of the South Campus.

Trustees approved the College's Graduation Efficiency Plan. Vice President of Academic Affairs Patricia Dyer explained that the plan, which is required by the Florida Division of Community Colleges, standardizes the number of hours required for AA and AS degrees. In particular, it establishes 60 transferable semester credit hours as the number required to complete an associate in arts degree as well as revises the general education core so that the required 36 semester hours for the associate in arts degree are in specified discipline categories.

The plan also revises the associate in science degree programs to conform to the number of semester hours in State Rule for each degree. The result is that the number of semester credit hours that students must accumulate to graduate for a degree and the time for degree completion are reduced. In addition, academic advising and transfer counseling are to be improved.

Under personnel matters, the annual promotions in academic rank were announced. Those faculty receiving promotions included Barbara Benken, from instructor to senior instructor; Maqsood Faquir, from assistant professor to associate professor; Mitchell Kass, from assistant professor to associate professor; Offiong Mkpog, from assistant professor to associate professor; Fred Van Dusen, from senior instructor to assistant professor; and Patricia Warner, from assistant professor to associate professor.

The Board also approved the appointment of Donna Brosemer as the College's legislative liaison/educational services coordinator.

It was announced that the President's Reception for New Faculty will be held on Friday, October 6, from 5:00 to 7:00 p.m. in the President's Dining Room on Central Campus.

It was also noted that the annual Glades Campus Golf Tournament to benefit student scholarships will be held on October 21.

The next board meeting, to be held at the Central Campus, is scheduled for 5:30 p.m., October 18, instead of October 11. A board workshop on physical education, wellness and the use of gymnasiums will be held at 4 p.m., prior to the meeting.

FALL TERM ENROLLMENT UP

Palm Beach Community College's opening fall term enrollment for the 1995-96 academic year has shown a slight increase, with 16,717 credit students enrolled collegewide. This compares to last year at this time when 16,679 students were enrolled.

An examination of PBCC's student population reveals the following information:

Non-resident Alien	287

Asian/Pacific Islander . .	449

PRESIDENT'S NOTES

A report in the September/October 1995 edition of the ACCT Advisor finds that two-year college freshmen learn as well as four-year college freshman. According to the article, a new study uncovered no major differences between two-year and four-year college students at the end-of-freshman year cognitive outcomes in the areas of reading, comprehension, mathematics and critical thinking.

The research, conducted by representatives from the University of Illinois at Chicago and Penn State and funded by Penn State's National Center on Postsecondary Education, examined 2,685 freshmen at five two-year and six four-year colleges from a cross section of the country.

There were several controls in the study including individual pre-college ability, gender, ethnicity, socio-economic origins, academic motivation, age, credit hours taken, place of residence, work responsibilities and average pre-college ability of students attending each institution.

The results of end-of-freshman year cognitive tests revealed that there was general parity between two-year and four-year college students. A 1993 report from the Florida

Division of Community Colleges indicated similar findings.

PRESIDENT'S NOTES

In the October 6 issue, The Chronicle of Higher Education examined 1994-95 and 1995-96 tuition and fees at over 3,000 colleges and universities across the nation. The figures represented charges to first-time, full-time undergraduates based on a nine-month academic year of 30 semester hours or 45 quarter hours.

The data was collected by the College Board in its Annual Survey of Colleges 1995, and the report was prepared by the Board's College Scholarship Service.

A comparison of costs with local colleges and universities finds that Palm Beach Community College continues to be a great educational bargain.

INSURANCE SURVEY RESULTS

We were pleased with the excellent response to the recent survey regarding PBCC's medical and dental program. A total of 255 personnel provided information on the HMO, and another 109 personnel responded to the PPC/Indemnity coverages. An additional 275 responded to the questions about the dental program.

Although there were definitely some personnel who were critical of these programs, 87.2 percent rated the HMO from average to excellent, and 86.4

percent indicated the College should definitely renew its coverages or they should renew if premiums do not increase by 10 percent or more. (A few responses indicated that 10 percent would be too high.)

Responses regarding the PPC/Indemnity program were a bit more favorable with 92.7 percent rating the coverage from average to excellent, and 91.8 percent indicating that the College should definitely renew its coverage or they should renew if premiums do not increase by 10 percent or more.

Assessments of the dental program were also generally favorable with 82.5 percent rating the coverage from average to excellent, and 84.8 percent indicating the College should definitely renew or renew if premiums do not increase by 10 percent or more.

The human resources office has compiled a list of comments made by College personnel (without names) who responded to the survey which will be made available to College personnel upon request.

PRESIDENT'S NOTES

At the monthly meeting of the PBCC District Board held November 8 at South Campus, College trustees heard a presentation on the South Campus vision for technology advancement.

A report by PBCC's attorney was given regarding the study in progress on the flooding that occurred on the Eissey Campus on October 17.

The Board approved signing a 50-year lease extension with Florida Atlantic University for PBCC's present South Campus location.

It was announced that the Living Christmas Tree program will be presented at 7 p.m. on Saturday, December 2 at the Dolly Hand Cultural Arts Center on the Glades Campus.

The next regular board meeting will be held at 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, December 13 in Conference Room C on the Central Campus. Preceding this meeting, a workshop regarding the PBCC Foundation will be held at 4 p.m.

NEW SUNCOM DIALING PLAN

Effective December 1, 1995, the procedure for dialing 10-digit non-SunCom (long distance) telephone numbers will change. After dialing your access number, you must dial 1 plus the area code and seven-digit number. SunCom dialing will remain the same. Until the effective date, the SunCom Network will allow dialing under both the new and current plan. However, after the December 1 date, only the new dialing plan will be available.

With implementation of the new SunCom dialing plan, it may be necessary to make hardware and/or software modifications to your existing telecommunications equipment. Fax machines, electronic key telephone systems, switchboard (PABX) systems, voice mail, speed calling, computer modems, pagers/beepers, call forwarding, automatic dialers and call detail recording equipment may need to be reprogrammed to dial the 1 + 10 dialing plan.

If you need additional information about the new dialing plan or assistance in determining what modifications are required for your telecommunications equipment, call the Department of Management Services, Division of Communications, at SunCom 990-6161 or 800-342-8222.

PRESIDENT'S NOTES

There is a new improvement in Florida's Prepaid College program which now allows purchasers to transfer unused portions of a tuition and dormitory contract to a qualified in-state private university or out-of-town institution.

The change means that even though a beneficiary has matriculated at a Florida state community college or university and has elected to transfer to a different institution, the remaining portion of their prepaid contract can be transferred for use at a qualified in-state private university or out-of-state institution.

Prior to the system update, the remaining contract could not be transferred to a private/out-of-state institution once a beneficiary had matriculated at a state institution. For more information regarding Florida's Prepaid College program, call (904) 488-8514.

PRESIDENT'S NOTES

Front-page headlines in a recent edition of the Miami Herald noted that two-year degrees represent the wave of the future, as increasingly, jobs and careers become more high tech. As a result, two-year degrees have gained renewed respect and value, as business and industry gear up for the 21st century work place.

By the year 2000, it is predicted that four out of every five jobs will not require a four-year degree. This trend is certain to play a major role in restructuring the nation's educational system, with two-year technical and community colleges assuming greater posture and visibility.

Though the technical workers of today and tomorrow may not require a bachelor's degree, they will need higher education--an education that will likely continue throughout their working lifetime as technology changes and improves.

The 1996 legislative session in Tallahassee is slated to run March 5 through May 3.

PRESIDENT'S NOTES

Around the nation, community colleges have experienced a decrease in enrollment due to an improving economy according to the January 15 edition of Community College Week. An annual enrollment survey by the American Council on Education (ACE) found that 62 percent of two-year institutions that responded noted a decline in student enrollment last fall.

Part of the decrease was also due to another concern--a reduction in the number of high school graduates.

Historically, community colleges--including PBCC--have noted a direct correlation between the state of the nation's economy and enrollment. According to David R. Pierce, president of the American Association of Community Colleges (AACC), recent talks with governing boards and other regional contacts point to an improving U.S. economy as the chief reason behind slower growth and a drop in community college enrollment.

In contrast, many two-year colleges have been experiencing an increased student enrollment in non-credit courses, a trend not covered in the survey.

Higher education administrators also attribute the decline to changing demographic patterns. In a strong national economy, high school graduates are more inclined to work full time rather than enter college. Also, some college-enrolled students opt to leave the classroom and enter the work place.

The donation represents a $100,000 bequest from the Ann L. Chew Scholarship Fund which will go into a Foundation endowment and matched by state of Florida funds. The interest from the endowment will be used as a scholarship for students having at least one parent with limited education working in South Florida agriculture. Additionally, the recipient must be a full-time degree-seeking student at any one of PBCC's four campus locations. The Foundation intends to work with the Migrant Worker's Association to determine the names of scholarship recipients.

SPECIAL BOARD MEETING HELD

During the January 24 special board meeting, trustees considered plans for two projects. They approved steps to achieve a child care development training center. The approval included the development of a business plan to determine the need, cost (construction and operating) and the justification. An outside task force to include the Children's Services Council and other appropriate agencies will assist in determining the final scope of this project.

The president is to obtain all necessary state approvals required to reallocate $1.2 million to this project from the currently approved Eissey Campus Physical Education facility. The funds that remain will be used to build the Eissey Campus Physical Education facility, with the exact configuration to be determined by the College's administration and the project architect.

PRESIDENT'S NOTES

A bill that would have established admissions standards for the state's 28 community colleges has been killed by the Florida House according to a published report in the January 29 issue of Community College Week.

The bill being considered would have required high school students applying for admission to a public two-year college to meet the same standards as those currently in place at the state's four-year universities.

According to recent studies, over 60 percent of students now entering Florida's community colleges after high school require some level of remediation. The institutions spent over $50 million on these programs last year.

The bill was voted down by four out of five members of the House Higher Education Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee who felt that it would have limited access to college for many students.

PBCC UNWRAPS THE BROWN BAG

PBCC's newest employee newsletter, the Brown Bag, debuted last week. Designed as a quarterly publication, the Bag, which contains everything but the kitchen sink, is an informal look at what's happening in the lives of PBCC employees--kind of a low-cost local version of the Liz Smith column.

The Bag will feature news about your kids, your travels, community activities, etc. There is also a recipe corner and a section for bright ideas and helpful hints.

And for those who remember the old Monday Report, we'll also carry birthdays--lots and lots of birthdays. (Relax--we list only the date, not the year. After all, Mamma didn't raise any fools.)

How do you get in the Bag? Just send your information (please be brief) to College Relations and Marketing, mail station #25. Items will be printed on a first come basis, so if you don't make the next issue, you'll make the one after that.

Funding for the Brown Bag is provided by private donations obtained from the PBCC Foundation.

So, get busy PBCC employees--we want you to sack it to us!
